REPORT

Program Title : An online Session on "Mental Health" (dt. : 8th Mar 2021)

No of Attendees	72
-----------------	----

Mental health is a major concern worldwide and India is not far behind in sharing this. If we evaluate developments in the field of mental health, the pace appears to be slow. Dr. Brock Chisholm, the first Director-General of the World Health Organization (WHO), in 1954, had presciently declared that "without mental health there can be no true physical health." More than 60 years later, the scenario has not altered substantially. About 14% of the global burden of disease is attributed to neuropsychiatric disorders. The burden of mental disorders is likely to have been underestimated because of inadequate appreciation of the inter-play between mental illness and other health disorders. There remain considerable issues of priority-setting based on the burden of health problems and of addressing inequalities in relation to determinants and solutions for health problems.

Progress in mental health service delivery has been slow in most low- and middle-income countries. Barriers include the existing public-health priorities and its influence on funding; challenges to delivery of mental health care in primary-care settings; the low numbers of those trained in mental health care; and the lack of mental health perspective in public-health leadership. There have been numerous calls for invoking political will, for enhancing advocacy and for galvanizing community participation; all with scant improvement in outcomes.

Thus, it becomes now opportune to explore the paradigm of mental health awareness as a means of combating stigma, enhancing prevention, ensuring early recognition, and also stimulating simple and practical interventions within the community. Today there are opportunities in terms of growing acknowledgement of mental disorders as key targets of global health action, as well as of leveraging new technologies particularly internet, big data and cell phones in amplifying simple field interventions found successful in primary care and other echelons.

To create such awareness among students and staff Women Development Cell of the Institute arranged an online session on "Mental Health" on the occasion of the international Women's Day. The session was delivered by Dr. Nilesh Pendurkar and Dr. Rashmi Pendurkar. Duration of the program was 1 hour (10am to 11am). President of WDC Mrs. Rane P.S. hosted the session. Principal of the institute Dr. A.C.Gangal expressed his views regarding the topic. Vote of thank was given by President, WDC.
